Colorado Chiropractic Office Spine Correction Center of the Rockies Shifts Focus to Medical

Fort Collins, CO 12/21/2010 - Colorado's Spine Correction Center of the Rockies recently shifted their focus from being a premier Chiropractic provider to being Northern Colorado's premier integrated care facility. They have added additional staff to create a team of specialized physicians to address patients' needs beyond just chiropractic.

Tarryn Farrell, Administrative Director of the clinic, said, "We are so excited to offer an integrated model to our patients. Now each patient gets a team of physicians with different specialties working together on his or her health. Using state-of-the-art technology and different disciplines, we get results that others can't, in a non-surgical, non-invasive, non-drug way."

The team went on to say that Chiropractic care is now only one tool of many that they use to address each patient's specific issues like disc disorders, migraines, carpal tunnel, low back pain, fibromyalgia, and other muscular-skeletal concerns.

An additional benefit to patients, the shift from chiropractic office to medical clinic means that more insurances cover the care, so more patients can access the care they need while potentially paying less out-of-pocket.
